Hello [redacted]

b6 -2

I am [redacted] Coordinator of the Prepublication Review Office. My office's function is to review intended publications by current/former FBI employees to determine if the employee has included information obtained during FBI employment, which should not otherwise be released. Examples would be classified information, Rule 6e, sensitive techniques, pending investigations or prosecutions, personal privacy info, FBI information not available to the general public through means such as FOIPA, the media or court records, etc.

As is more common than not, it is necessary that we call upon FBI "subject matter experts" to review the submissions of current/former FBI employees as the subject matter at issue is beyond the general expertise of my employees. It is in that regard, that I am contacting you.

Would you please have someone in your office review a manuscript that we received from Former Special Agent Robert Wittman (Retired) titled, "Priceless." Mr. Wittman describes his work on cases in the art world. The documents are being sent to your office through the bureau mail. Please provide us your conclusions regarding the information in question. Should you have questions, please feel free to call or email me.

General Rules-We have 30 business days to respond to the author. We would like to respond to the requester as soon as we can. Also, as the material is proprietary information, it is not to be disclosed/shared beyond those persons involved in the review process. I've also attached our Prepublication Guidelines.

Hi [redacted]

b6 -2

I received your package in the bumail as well and have [redacted] reviewing the manuscript. From a cursory review we've already noted numerous areas of concern - some that will need to be deleted and some that may just require a rewrite.

I've noted your 30 business days response but I wasn't certain if that was from when you received the manuscript or if this is our deadline. Can you clarify?

Thanks!

Hi [redacted]

b6 -2

I received your package in the bumail as well and have [redacted] reviewing the manuscript. From a cursory review we've already noted numerous areas of concern - some that will need to be deleted and some that may just require a rewrite.

I've noted your 30 business days response but I wasn't certain if that was from when you received the manuscript or if this is our deadline. Can you clarify?

Thanks!

Good morning [redacted]

I am [redacted] Coordinator of the Prepublication Review Office. My office's function is to review intended publications by current/former FBI employees to determine if the employee has included information obtained during FBI employment, which should not otherwise be released. Examples would be classified information, Rule 6e, sensitive techniques, pending investigations or prosecutions, personal privacy info, FBI information not available to the general public through means such as FOIPA, the media or court records, etc.

As is more common than not, it is necessary that we call upon FBI "subject matter experts" to review the submissions of current/former FBI employees as the subject matter at issue is beyond the general expertise of my employees. It is in that regard, that I am contacting you.

Would you please have someone in your office review one chapter of a manuscript that we received from Former Special Agent Robert Wittman (Retired) titled, "Priceless." Mr. Wittman describes [redacted] b7E -2, 3, 6 in a case he worked in the art world. The documents are being sent to your office through the bureau mail. Please provide us your conclusions regarding the information in question. Should you have questions, please feel free to call or email me.

General Rules-We have 30 business days to respond to the author. We would like to respond to the requester as soon as we can. Also, as the material is proprietary information, it is not to be disclosed/shared beyond those persons involved in the review process. I've also attached our Prepublication Guidelines.

Hello [redacted]

b6 -2

The 30 business days are from when you receive it. I know there is a lot of material to wade through. If you would please bracket the material in question and why you want it deleted or rewritten. That will be a big help to me. If you need anything from me, please give me a call.

Thank you

Hi [redacted]

b6 -2

I received your package in the bumail as well and have [redacted] reviewing the manuscript. From a cursory review we've already noted numerous areas of concern - some that will need to be deleted and some that may just require a rewrite.

I've noted your 30 business days response but I wasn't certain if that was from when you received the manuscript or if this is our deadline. Can you clarify?

Thanks!

Good morning [redacted]

I am [redacted] Coordinator of the Prepublication Review Office. My office's function is to review intended publications by current/former FBI employees to determine if the employee has included information obtained during FBI employment, which should not otherwise be released. Examples would be classified information, Rule 6e, sensitive techniques, pending investigations or prosecutions, personal privacy info, FBI information not available to the general public through means such as FOIPA, the media or court records, etc.

As is more common than not, it is necessary that we call upon FBI "subject matter experts" to review the submissions of current/former FBI employees as the subject matter at issue is beyond the general expertise of my employees. It is in that regard, that I am contacting you.

Would you please have someone in your office review one chapter of a manuscript that we received from Former Special Agent Robert Wittman (Retired) titled, "Priceless." Mr. Wittman describes [redacted] b7E -2, 3 [redacted] in a case he worked in the art world. The documents are being sent to your office through the bureau mail. Please provide us your conclusions regarding the information in question. Should you have questions, please feel free to call or email me.

General Rules-We have 30 business days to respond to the author. We would like to respond to the requester as soon as we can. Also, as the material is proprietary information, it is not to be disclosed/shared beyond those persons involved in the review process. I've also attached our Prepublication Guidelines.

Hello [REDACTED]
Hope you survived the storm and enjoyed the time off.

I believe you may have been copied in on some email traffic regarding Mr. Wittman's book. It's created quite the hornet's nest as he references an ongoing investigation. I was just made aware of this information but wanted to get it to you ASAP to see what the status of the review is and can we have additional edits?

b6 -2

Thank you for your email on March 2, 2010, noting the objections to Mr. Wittman's proposed manuscript. Please provide a detailed listing of all objection by:

1. the page number
2. the portion of the manuscript in question
3. what the objection is - such as law enforcement sensitive, pending investigation, etc.

This information will be critical for us to have at hand. If and when, and you know he will, take it farther.

I'm also going to try to send this email on the high side. I tried the other day on the high side and it came back - Failure to Deliver.

If you have any questions, please give me a call.

Hello [redacted]

b6 -2

Thank you for your email on March 2, 2010, noting the objections to Mr. Wittman's proposed manuscript. Please provide a detailed listing of all objection by:

1. the page number
2. the portion of the manuscript in question
3. what the objection is - such as law enforcement sensitive, pending investigation, etc.

This information will be critical for us to have at hand. If and when, and you know he will, take it farther.

I'm also going to try to send this email on the high side. I tried the other day on the high side and it came back - Failure to

Mr. Hardy,

I had already gone through the files and found his "Original SF-312 Exit Form," it is a "Classified Information Nondisclosure Agreement." He signed it on 6/26/08. I also found a FD-291-FBI Employment Agreement, he signed on 7/1/03. The 9th amendment states, "I accept the above provisions as conditions of my employment or continued employment by the FBI. I agree to comply with these provisions both during my employment in the FBI and following termination of such employment." Doesn't that still apply?

Dear Mr. Hardy and [redacted]

b6 -2

Thank you for sending me the FBI's recommended changes to Priceless. I have reviewed them carefully and have incorporated many of your suggestions which I have attached to this email.

If you would like me to reconsider the FBI proposed changes that I have not incorporated, please provide a brief reason for each. I will consider your recommendations, but please understand that the FBI's response is long overdue and publication of Priceless is imminent. Please provide any additional information by close of business on Thursday, March 11. Also, feel free to call, or write if you have any other questions or concerns. Thank you for your attention to this matter I sincerely appreciate it.

Best,
Bob

Hello Mr. Wittman,

Please see the attachment. The brackets on those pages denote portions or entire pages that need to be removed. This is only a partial listing that needs to be addressed. A portion of your manuscript is currently under review by the International Office Division. Please send me a copy of the amended pages. We are available to discuss the redactions further.

Thank you

Mr. Hardy,

I reviewed the proposed amendments from Mr. Wittman versus the amendments the FBI wanted. He didn't not really do much that we requested. I might be over critical...but he is doing what he wants to do. "Since the FBI is so over due on the manuscript," according to him. Even though I told him on a number of occasions, that if it goes to another entity to be reviewed, it would take longer. I have it marked according to what he sent in. Also, he did not send the actual pages. Call me skeptical, but I don't trust what he said he did, he did. Which was hardy anything!

Crazy!

Enough said on that. :) I read the submitted manuscript, article, resume, etc and put my recommendation on it. Mr. Hardy (Section Chief of RIDS) reviews the product and let's me know if it needs to be reviewed by any FBI Divisions or another government agency. I usually look up the Division/Unit it pertains to on the Intranet and see who is in charge and email them to make sure they are the ones to review it. I then send the hard copy through the Bureau mail to that unit. They view it and send their recommendations or approval to me. I write the author if something needs to be changed and tell him to submit the amended pages to me. If and when the author does that, then he get an approval letter from Prepublication. I hope that wasn't way to much information.

I'm reviewing "Priceless" again and taking out everything that needs to be. I just wanted to check with you.

Thanks

Thanks for allowing the input!

As an aside [redacted] several of us in CID are trying to determine the protocol for review of a manuscript. When your shop gets it and sends it off to CID (by way of example) what criteria do you use for determining who within CID should review the document? We're all fairly new to this process and are just trying to determine the natural progression.

Thanks again!

Re: Manuscript titled, "Priceless"

Dear Mr. Wittman,

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) received your submission on November 23, 2009, requesting prepublication review of your manuscript titled, "Priceless."

The FBI's prepublication review policy provided for a review period of thirty business days not counting the day of receipt. This review period can be extended depending upon the complexity of the materials being reviewed, but in most cases the reviews are completed within the thirty business day period. A review of your submission is in progress and we will advise of the results upon completion.

Hello Mr. Wittman,

Your manuscript is being reviewed by another division in the FBI. I would hope it would be a few weeks, but I would say not more than a month. I know that isn't a very definite answer. I will keep you advised when I hear something from them.

Dear Mr. Hardy,

Thank you for your email. I am surprised by your dismissive opinion of the meeting I had with [redacted] of the FBI. He contacted me on 2/19/2010 and requested that we meet. He advised me that he was meeting with me on behalf of the substantive FBI Units to discuss concerns that the Bureau had with my manuscript. As a result of that meeting and the document he gave me listing the concerns, I made changes he suggested.

b6 -2

I respectfully remind you that the FBI has had my manuscript in its possession since November 2009, well beyond the normal review period. When [redacted] called and arranged a meeting with me it was apparent to me that he was acting on behalf of the FBI in performing the pre-release review. Following the meeting and making the changes, the manuscript was conformed to galley form and distributed for long-range review. I am still in a position to make some changes to the final manuscript but I must have any concerns from you by COB Monday, March 8.

I will refer this email to my attorneys who have noted that the Bureau cannot censor my manuscript by inattention or inaction.

I look forward to hearing from you very soon. If I don't receive your material as requested above, the book will be released for final publication. You may contact me at any of the numbers below.

Best,
Bob

Bob,

I'm glad you got back to me and are providing an opportunity to resolve this situation. That said, first, as a SA for many years I'm sure you know the difference between official approval and informal discussions. Second, the 30 day review period in FBI regs for prepublication review does not create a legal entitlement for you. Third, the FBI vigorously reviewed your manuscript—a number of agents took time from real cases to review your work expeditiously. Finally, forgetting any back and forth, the manuscript as written will cause serious harm to pending investigations. This is the crux of the matter and I'm certain there is agreement that this should not occur.

Dear Mr. Hardy,

Thank you for your email. I am surprised by your dismissive opinion of the meeting I had with [redacted] of the FBI. He contacted me on 2/19/2010 and requested that we meet. He advised me that he was meeting with me on behalf of the substantive FBI Units to discuss concerns that the Bureau had with my manuscript. As a result of that meeting and the document he gave me listing the concerns, I made changes he suggested.

b6 -2

I respectfully remind you that the FBI has had my manuscript in its possession since November 2009, well beyond the normal review period. When [redacted] called and arranged a meeting with me it was apparent to me that he was acting on behalf of the FBI in performing the pre-release review. Following the meeting and making the changes, the manuscript was conformed to galley form and distributed for long-range review. I am still in a position to make some changes to the final manuscript but I must have any concerns from you by COB Monday, March 8.

I will refer this email to my attorneys who have noted that the Bureau cannot censor my manuscript by inattention or inaction.

I look forward to hearing from you very soon. If I don't receive your material as requested above, the book will be released for final publication. You may contact me at any of the numbers below.

Best,
Bob

Dear Mr. Wittman,

This is in response to your e-mail of March 2nd to this office concerning the FBI's prepublication review of your manuscript "Priceless." The personal meeting you referred to in your note was in no way FBI approval of your manuscript. There remains significant concerns with the manuscript, including concern that information in the manuscript will compromise a pending investigation. As stated in our e-mail on March 2nd, these concerns must be addressed prior to further distribution of the manuscript.

I am certain as a Special Agent that you do not want to harm in any way the investigative efforts of the FBI. In any event, I have referred this matter to FBI's Office of General Counsel. You may contact me at the number below.

Hello [redacted]

b6 -2

Thank you for your email on March 2, 2010, noting the objections to Mr. Wittman's proposed manuscript. Please provide a detailed listing of all objections by:

1. The page number
2. The portion of the manuscript in question
3. What the objection is – such as law enforcement sensitive, pending investigation, etc.

This information will be critical for us to have at hand. If and when, and you know he will, take it farther.

Dear Mr. Wittman,

Continuing the FBI prepublication review process of your manuscript "Priceless," the FBI has completed an initial assessment of your proposed changes. Your proposed changes do not nearly address the concerns previously raised to you by the FBI. The manuscript in its current form continues to expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

To be clear, your manuscript "Priceless" is not approved for publication by the FBI.

The FBI desires to work with you to possibly further define and narrow the areas of concern in the manuscript. That said, this will require a serious effort on your part to modify significant portions of the manuscript.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Subject: RE: prepublication review responses

Dear Mr. Hardy,

Thank you for your email last night. With all due respect, you write that the changes of text I recently proposed do not adequately address the concerns your office previously raised. The problem for me is that you have failed to raise any specific concerns regarding the passages you have asked me to remove. You have merely bracketed the text you want removed and submitted that it be removed without any explanation or justification for the request. In some instances, you have bracketed large passages of text for removal, the substance of which could not possibly reveal sensitive information or compromise an investigation. That is not an adequate and or good faith review process, and I don't believe I am obligated to comply with such sweeping and unjustified demands on the text of my work.

If you want me to continue to engage with your office in a meaningful dialogue about your concerns, it is essential that you specifically identify for me the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. As you know, I first submitted the manuscript for your consideration in November of last year. I have been waiting for more than 3 1/2 months for your specific response. As a result of this delay my publisher and I are on a very tight publication schedule so I will need your response by COB Tuesday, March 16, 2010.

Dear Mr. Wittman,

Continuing the FBI prepublication review process of your manuscript "Priceless," the FBI has completed an initial assessment of your proposed changes. Your proposed changes do not nearly address the concerns previously raised to you by the FBI. The manuscript in its current form continues to expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

To be clear, your manuscript "Priceless" is not approved for publication by the FBI.

The FBI desires to work with you to possibly further define and narrow the areas of concern in the manuscript. That said, this will require a serious effort on your part to modify significant portions of the manuscript.

Sincerely,
 David M. Hardy

Dear Mr. Hardy,

Thank you for your email last night. With all due respect, you write that the changes of text I recently proposed do not adequately address the concerns your office previously raised. The problem for me is that you have failed to raise any specific concerns regarding the passages you have asked me to remove. You have merely bracketed the text you want removed and submitted that it be removed without any explanation or justification for the request. In some instances, you have bracketed large passages of text for removal, the substance of which could not possibly reveal sensitive information or compromise an investigation. That is not an adequate and or good faith review process, and I don't believe I am obligated to comply with such sweeping and unjustified demands on the text of my work.

If you want me to continue to engage with your office in a meaningful dialogue about your concerns, it is essential that you specifically identify for me the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. Dear Mr Hardy,

Thank you for your email and request to meet personally. Unfortunately, beginning Saturday, March 13th I will be in Port Huron, MI., as a witness in a Federal court trial where I will be giving expert testimony. As a result, I will not be available for any personal meetings. I would speak on a conference call if you wish. My attorney and I may be available after 2 pm Monday and Tuesday, March 15-16. Again, with all due respect, I ask that you specifically identify for me in writing the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. I remind you that I must have this information by COB March 16 to be able to make changes.

Best,
Bob

Subject: RE: prepublication review responses

Dear Mr. Hardy,

Thank you for your email last night. With all due respect, you write that the changes of text I recently proposed do not adequately address the concerns your office previously raised. The problem for me is that you have failed to raise any specific concerns regarding the passages you have asked me to remove. You have merely bracketed the text you want removed and submitted that it be removed without any explanation or justification for the request. In some instances, you have bracketed large passages of text for removal, the substance of which could not possibly reveal sensitive information or compromise an investigation. That is not an adequate and or good faith review process, and I don't believe I am obligated to comply with such sweeping and unjustified demands on the text of my work.

37

If you want me to continue to engage with your office in a meaningful dialogue about your concerns, it is essential that you specifically identify for me the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. As you know, I first submitted the manuscript for your consideration in November of last year. I have been waiting for more than 3 1/2 months for your specific response. As a result of this delay my publisher and I are on a very tight publication schedule so I will need your response by COB Tuesday, March 16, 2010.

Dear Mr. Wittman,

Continuing the FBI prepublication review process of your manuscript "Priceless," the FBI has completed an initial assessment of your proposed changes. Your proposed changes do not nearly address the concerns previously raised to you by the FBI. The manuscript in its current form continues to expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

To be clear, your manuscript "Priceless" is not approved for publication by the FBI.

The FBI desires to work with you to possibly further define and narrow the areas of concern in the manuscript. That said, this will require a serious effort on your part to modify significant portions of the manuscript.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

The problem for me is that you have failed to raise any specific concerns regarding the passages you have asked me to remove. You have merely bracketed the text you want removed and submitted that it be removed without any explanation or justification for the request. In some instances, you have bracketed large passages of text for removal, the substance of which could not possibly reveal sensitive information or compromise an investigation. That is not an adequate and or good faith review process, and I don't believe I am obligated to comply with such sweeping and unjustified demands on the text of my work.

If you want me to continue to engage with your office in a meaningful dialogue about your concerns, it is essential that you specifically identify for me the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. As you know, I first submitted the manuscript for your consideration in November of last year. I have been waiting for more than 3 1/2 months for your specific response. As a result of this delay my publisher and I are on a very tight publication schedule so I will need your response by COB. Tuesday, March 16, 2010.

Best,
Bob

Dear Mr. Wittman,

Continuing the FBI prepublication review process of your manuscript "Priceless," the FBI has completed an initial assessment of your proposed changes. Your proposed changes do not nearly address the concerns previously raised to you by the FBI. The manuscript in its current form continues to expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

To be clear, your manuscript "Priceless" is not approved for publication by the FBI.

The FBI desires to work with you to possibly further define and narrow the areas of concern in the manuscript. That said, this will require a serious effort on your part to modify significant portions of the manuscript.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Dear Mr Hardy,

Thank you for your email and request to meet personally. Unfortunately, beginning Saturday, March 13th I will be in Port Huron, MI., as a witness in a Federal court trial where I will be giving expert testimony. As a result, I will not be available for any personal meetings. I would speak on a conference call if you wish. My attorney and I may be available after 2 pm Monday and Tuesday, March 15-16. Again, with all due respect, I ask that you specifically identify for me in writing the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. I remind you that I must have this information by COB March 16 to be able to make changes.

Dear Mr. Wittman,

We have made substantial progress on responding to your request for further details on the rationale for our objections to your manuscript. We will not be able to finish the review on the "Gardner Museum" portion of the manuscript until Monday, March 22nd. We will forward to you a bracketed copy of the manuscript with specific rationale for each bracket quickly thereafter.

Given your years of experience as an agent with the FBI and knowledge about the cases detailed in the manuscript, I have to believe that you fully understand the sensitivity of the bracketed portions of the manuscript that the FBI highlighted for you. I also have to believe that you would not purposefully expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts. The most expeditious manner to resolve these issues at this point is for us to winnow down any areas of disagreement as soon as possible. We can begin the dialogue immediately. If you desire, we can forward our more detailed rationale --minus the Gardener Museum portion--to you tomorrow.

Also, I note that you are scheduled to speak on the Gardener Museum case at the National Crime Museum on March 22nd. I want to remind you that the FBI's Prepublication Review requirements are equally applicable to the information you provide in that speech. In that speech you may not provide information that would disclose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Thank you for your email last night. With all due respect, you write that the changes of text I recently proposed do not adequately address the concerns your office previously raised. The problem for me is that you have failed to raise any specific concerns regarding the passages you have asked me to remove. You have merely bracketed the text you want removed and submitted that it be removed without any explanation or justification for the request. In some instances, you have bracketed large passages of text for removal, the substance of which could not possibly reveal sensitive information or compromise an investigation. That is not an adequate and or good faith review process, and I don't believe I am obligated to comply with such sweeping and unjustified demands on the text of my work.

If you want me to continue to engage with your office in a meaningful dialogue about your concerns, it is essential that you specifically identify for me the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. As you know, I first submitted the manuscript for your consideration in November of last year. I have been waiting for more than 3 1/2 months for your specific response. As a result of this delay my publisher and I are on a very tight publication schedule so I will need your response by COB Tuesday, March 16, 2010.

4/27/2010

Best,
Bob

Dear Mr. Wittman,

Continuing the FBI prepublication review process of your manuscript "Priceless," the FBI has completed an initial assessment of your proposed changes. Your proposed changes do not nearly address the concerns previously raised to you by the FBI. The manuscript in its current form continues to expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

To be clear, your manuscript "Priceless" is not approved for publication by the FBI.

The FBI desires to work with you to possibly further define and narrow the areas of concern in the manuscript. That said, this will require a serious effort on your part to modify significant portions of the manuscript.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Dear Mr. Wittman,

We have made substantial progress on responding to your request for further details on the rationale for our objections to your manuscript. We will not be able to finish the review on the "Gardner Museum" portion of the manuscript until Monday, March 22nd. We will forward to you a bracketed copy of the manuscript with specific rationale for each bracket quickly thereafter.

Given your years of experience as an agent with the FBI and knowledge about the cases detailed in the manuscript, I have to believe that you fully understand the sensitivity of the bracketed portions of the manuscript that the FBI highlighted for you. I also have to believe that you would not purposefully expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts. The most expeditious manner to resolve these issues at this point is for us to winnow down any areas of disagreement as soon as possible. We can begin the dialogue immediately. If you desire, we can forward our more detailed rationale — minus the Gardener Museum portion—to you tomorrow.

Also, I note that you are scheduled to speak on the Gardener Museum case at the National Crime Museum on March 22nd. I want to remind you that the FBI's Prepublication Review requirements are equally applicable to the information you provide in that speech. In that speech you may not provide information that would disclose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

UNCLASSIFIED
NON-RECORD

The following FOIA categories seem applicable in this instance:

- ① -Personal identities and information on individuals derived from FBI investigations (not from a public source);
 - ② -Information from a pending FBI investigation (not from a public source) and whose release would harm an investigation;
 - ③ -Information that would disclose a sensitive law enforcement technique and whose release would allow future circumvention of the law;
 - ④ -Confidential informant identities and the information provided by them;
 - ⑤ -Information that if released could result in harm to an individual;
 - ⑥ -Information that was provided to the FBI by another law enforcement agency under the understanding that it would not be further disseminated or attributed to them;
 - ⑦ -Grand Jury, witness protection, federal income tax information.
- ⑧ Classified information

Dear Mr. Hardy,

I have attempted to work with the FBI in good faith in the prepublication review process for the past 3 1/2 months and am very dissappointed that I have not been treated in kind. I have made many changes to the manuscript in an effort to accomodate FBI requests. As a result of your lack of ability to give me any specificity in a reasonably timely manner regarding your concerns about my manuscript for "Priceless" I am moving forward and publishing. If you would like to furnish any specifics to me by tomorrow morning I will consider them, but I am proceeding with publication.

Best,

Subject: RE: prepublication review responses

Dear Mr. Wittman,

We have made substantial progress on responding to your request for further details on the rationale for our objections to your manuscript. We will not be able to finish the review on the "Gardner Museum" portion of the manuscript until Monday, March 22nd. We will forward to you a bracketed copy of the manuscript with specific rationale for each bracket quickly thereafter.

Given your years of experience as an agent with the FBI and knowledge about the cases detailed in the manuscript, I have to believe that you fully understand the sensitivity of the bracketed portions of the manuscript that the FBI highlighted for you. I also have to believe that you would not purposefully expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts. The most expeditious manner to resolve these issues at this point is for us to winnow down any areas of disagreement as soon as possible. We can begin the dialogue immediately. If you desire, we can forward our more detailed rationale --minus the Gardener Museum portion—to you tomorrow.

Also, I note that you are scheduled to speak on the Gardener Museum case at the National Crime Museum on March 22nd. I want to remind you that the FBI's Prepublication Review requirements are equally applicable to the information you provide in that speech. In that speech you may not provide information that would disclose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Dear Mr. Hardy,

Thank you for your email last night. With all due respect, you write that the changes of text I recently proposed do not adequately address the concerns your office previously raised. The problem for me is that you have failed to raise any specific concerns regarding the passages you have asked me to remove. You have merely bracketed the text you want removed and submitted that it be removed without any explanation or justification for the request. In some instances, you have bracketed large passages of text for removal, the substance of which could not possibly reveal sensitive information or compromise an investigation. That is not an adequate and or good faith review process, and I don't believe I am obligated to comply with such sweeping and unjustified demands on the text of my work.

If you want me to continue to engage with your office in a meaningful dialogue about your concerns, it is essential that you specifically identify for me the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. As you know, I first submitted the manuscript for your consideration in November of last year. I have been waiting for more than 3 1/2 months for your specific response. As a result of this delay my publisher and I are on a very tight publication schedule so I will need your response by COB Tuesday, March 16, 2010.

Best,
 Bob

Dear Mr. Wittman,

51

4/27/2010

PREPUB-9138

Continuing the FBI prepublication review process of your manuscript "Priceless," the FBI has completed an initial assessment of your proposed changes. Your proposed changes do not nearly address the concerns previously raised to you by the FBI. The manuscript in its current form continues to expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

To be clear, your manuscript "Priceless" is not approved for publication by the FBI.

The FBI desires to work with you to possibly further define and narrow the areas of concern in the manuscript. That said, this will require a serious effort on your part to modify significant portions of the manuscript.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Dear Mr. Hardy and [REDACTED]

Thank you for sending me the FBI's recommended changes to Priceless. I have reviewed them carefully and have incorporated many of your suggestions which I have attached to this email.

If you would like me to reconsider the FBI proposed changes that I have not incorporated, please provide a brief reason for each. I will consider your recommendations, but please understand that the FBI's response is long overdue and publication of Priceless is imminent. Please provide any additional information by close of business on Thursday, March 11. Also, feel free to call, or write if you have any other questions or concerns. Thank you for your attention to this matter I sincerely appreciate it.

Re: Manuscript titled, "Priceless"

Dear Mr. Wittman,

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) received your submission on November 23, 2009, requesting prepublication review of your manuscript titled, "Priceless."

The FBI's prepublication review policy provided for a review period of thirty business days not counting the day of receipt. This review period can be extended depending upon the complexity of the materials being reviewed, but in most cases the reviews are completed within the thirty business day period. A review of your submission is in progress and we will advise of the results upon completion.

Should you have any questions, please contact [redacted] at 540-868-1697. Thank you for your participation in the FBI's prepublication review process.

Dear Mr. Hardy,

The pages that [redacted] forwarded to me Wednesday and Thursday arrived well past the Tuesday COB deadline I apprised you of in my email to you last Friday and again this past Sunday. Fortunately, my publisher was able to make some last-minute changes regarding manuscript [redacted] though the nature of your concern was not apparent from your notation, and some changes on [redacted] were made. The rest of the changes you requested were either previously accepted (per my email of March 11), or the cryptic explanation you provided for the changes did not sufficiently express a justification for censoring the material, so I have not adopted the deletion.

b7E -3

The book is now going into the final production stage and I can no longer consider further requests for changes. I am confident that the material regarding the Gardner Museum does not disclose sensitive law enforcement information.

Sincerely

Dear Mr. Hardy,

I have attempted to work with the FBI in good faith in the prepublication review process for the past 3 1/2 months and am very dissapointed that I have not been treated in kind. I have made many changes to the manuscript in an effort to accomodate FBI requests. As a result of your lack of ability to give me any specificity in a reasonably timely manner regarding your concerns about my manuscript for "Priceless" I am moving forward and publishing. If you would like to furnish any specifics to me by tomorrow morning I will consider them, but I am proceeding with publication.

Dear Mr. Wittman,

We have made substantial progress on responding to your request for further details on the rationale for our objections to your manuscript. We will not be able to finish the review on the "Gardner Museum" portion of the manuscript until Monday, March 22nd. We will forward to you a bracketed copy of the manuscript with specific rationale for each bracket quickly thereafter.

Given your years of experience as an agent with the FBI and knowledge about the cases detailed in the manuscript, I have to believe that you fully understand the sensitivity of the bracketed portions of the manuscript that the FBI highlighted for you. I also have to believe that you would not purposefully expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts. The most expeditious manner to resolve these issues at this point is for us to winnow down any areas of disagreement as soon as possible. We can begin the dialogue immediately. If you desire, we can forward our more detailed rationale --minus the Gardener Museum portion--to you tomorrow.

Also, I note that you are scheduled to speak on the Gardener Museum case at the National Crime Museum on March 22nd. I want to remind you that the FBI's Prepublication Review requirements are equally applicable to the information you provide in that speech. In that speech you may not provide information that would disclose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Subject: RE: prepublication review responses

Dear Mr. Hardy,

Thank you for your email last night. With all due respect, you write that the changes of text I recently proposed do not adequately address the concerns your office previously raised. The problem for me is that you have failed to raise any specific concerns regarding the passages you have asked me to remove. You have merely bracketed the text you want removed and submitted that it be removed without any explanation or justification for the request. In some instances, you have bracketed large passages of text for removal, the substance of which could not possibly reveal sensitive information or compromise an investigation. That is not an adequate and or good faith review process, and I don't believe I am obligated to comply with such sweeping and unjustified demands on the text of my work.

4/29/2010

If you want me to continue to engage with your office in a meaningful dialogue about your concerns, it is essential that you specifically identify for me the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. As you know, I first submitted the manuscript for your consideration in November of last year. I have been waiting for more than 3 1/2 months for your specific response. As a result of this delay my publisher and I are on a very tight publication schedule so I will need your response by COB Tuesday, March 16, 2010.

Best,
Bob

Dear Mr. Wittman,

Continuing the FBI prepublication review process of your manuscript "Priceless," the FBI has completed an initial assessment of your proposed changes. Your proposed changes do not nearly address the concerns previously raised to you by the FBI. The manuscript in its current form continues to expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

To be clear, your manuscript "Priceless" is not approved for publication by the FBI.

The FBI desires to work with you to possibly further define and narrow the areas of concern in the manuscript. That said, this will require a serious effort on your part to modify significant portions of the manuscript.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Dear Mr. Hardy and [redacted]

b6 -2

Thank you for sending me the FBI's recommended changes to Priceless. I have reviewed them carefully and have incorporated many of your suggestions which I have attached to this email.

If you would like me to reconsider the FBI proposed changes that I have not incorporated, please provide a brief reason for each. I will consider your recommendations, but please understand that the FBI's response is long overdue and publication of Priceless is imminent. Please provide any additional information by close of business on Thursday, March 11. Also, feel free to call, or write if you have any other questions or concerns. Thank you for your attention to this matter I sincerely appreciate it.

Best,
Bob

Dear Mr. Hardy,

The pages that [REDACTED] forwarded to me Wednesday and Thursday arrived well past the Tuesday COB deadline I apprised you of in my email to you last Friday and again this past Sunday. Fortunately, my publisher was able to make some last-minute changes regarding manuscript [REDACTED] though the nature of your concern was not apparent from your notation, and some changes on [REDACTED] were made. The rest of the changes you requested were either previously accepted (per my email of March 11), or the cryptic explanation you provided for the changes did not sufficiently express a justification for censoring the material, so I have not adopted the deletion.

b7E -3

The book is now going into the final production stage and I can no longer consider further requests for changes. I am confident that the material regarding the Gardner Museum does not disclose sensitive law enforcement information.

Sincerely

Robert K. Wittman

Dear Mr. Hardy,

I have attempted to work with the FBI in good faith in the prepublication review process for the past 3 1/2 months and am very dissapointed that I have not been treated in kind. I have made many changes to the manuscript in an effort to accomodate FBI requests. As a result of your lack of ability to give me any specificity in a reasonably timely manner regarding your concerns about my manuscript for "Priceless" I am moving forward and publishing. If you would like to furnish any specifics to me by tomorrow morning I will consider them, but I am proceeding with publication.

Dear Mr. Wittman,

We have made substantial progress on responding to your request for further details on the rationale for our objections to your manuscript. We will not be able to finish the review on the "Gardner Museum" portion of the manuscript until Monday, March 22nd. We will forward to you a bracketed copy of the manuscript with specific rationale for each bracket quickly thereafter.

Given your years of experience as an agent with the FBI and knowledge about the cases detailed in the manuscript, I have to believe that you fully understand the sensitivity of the bracketed portions of the manuscript that the FBI highlighted for you. I also have to believe that you would not purposefully expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts. The most expeditious manner to resolve these issues at this point is for us to winnow down any areas of disagreement as soon as possible. We can begin the dialogue immediately. If you desire, we can forward our more detailed rationale --minus the Gardener Museum portion--to you tomorrow.

Also, I note that you are scheduled to speak on the Gardener Museum case at the National Crime Museum on March 22nd. I want to remind you that the FBI's Prepublication Review requirements are equally applicable to the information you provide in that speech. In that speech you may not provide information that would disclose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Subject: RE: prepublication review responses

Dear Mr. Hardy,

Thank you for your email last night. With all due respect, you write that the changes of text I recently proposed do not adequately address the concerns your office previously raised. The problem for me is that you have failed to raise any specific concerns regarding the passages you have asked me to remove. You have merely bracketed the text you want removed and submitted that it be removed without any explanation or justification for the request. In some instances, you have bracketed large passages of text for removal, the substance of which could not possibly reveal sensitive information or compromise an investigation. That is not an adequate and or good faith review process, and I don't believe I am obligated to comply with such sweeping and unjustified demands on the text of my work.

66

If you want me to continue to engage with your office in a meaningful dialogue about your concerns, it is essential that you specifically identify for me the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. As you know, I first submitted the manuscript for your consideration in November of last year. I have been waiting for more than 3 1/2 months for your specific response. As a result of this delay my publisher and I are on a very tight publication schedule so I will need your response by COB Tuesday, March 16, 2010.

Best,
Bob

Dear Mr. Wittman,

Continuing the FBI prepublication review process of your manuscript "Priceless," the FBI has completed an initial assessment of your proposed changes. Your proposed changes do not nearly address the concerns previously raised to you by the FBI. The manuscript in its current form continues to expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

To be clear, your manuscript "Priceless" is not approved for publication by the FBI.

The FBI desires to work with you to possibly further define and narrow the areas of concern in the manuscript. That said, this will require a serious effort on your part to modify significant portions of the manuscript.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Dear Mr. Hardy,

4/29/2010

PREPUB-9199

I have attempted to work with the FBI in good faith in the prepublication review process for the past 3 1/2 months and am very dissatisfied that I have not been treated in kind. I have made many changes to the manuscript in an effort to accommodate FBI requests. As a result of your lack of ability to give me any specificity in a reasonably timely manner regarding your concerns about my manuscript for "Priceless" I am moving forward and publishing. If you would like to furnish any specifics to me by tomorrow morning I will consider them, but I am proceeding with publication.

Best,

Robert K. Wittman

Dear Mr. Wittman,

We have made substantial progress on responding to your request for further details on the rationale for our objections to your manuscript. We will not be able to finish the review on the "Gardner Museum" portion of the manuscript until Monday, March 22nd. We will forward to you a bracketed copy of the manuscript with specific rationale for each bracket quickly thereafter.

Given your years of experience as an agent with the FBI and knowledge about the cases detailed in the manuscript, I have to believe that you fully understand the sensitivity of the bracketed portions of the manuscript that the FBI highlighted for you. I also have to believe that you would not purposefully expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts. The most expeditious manner to resolve these issues at this point is for us to winnow down any areas of disagreement as soon as possible. We can begin the dialogue immediately. If you desire, we can forward our more detailed rationale --minus the Gardener Museum portion--to you tomorrow.

Also, I note that you are scheduled to speak on the Gardener Museum case at the National Crime Museum on March 22nd. I want to remind you that the FBI's Prepublication Review requirements are equally applicable to the information you provide in that speech. In that speech you may not provide information that would disclose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Hardy,

Thank you for your email last night. With all due respect, you write that the changes of text I recently proposed do not adequately address the concerns your office previously raised. The problem for me is that you have failed to raise any specific concerns regarding the passages you have asked me to remove. You have merely bracketed the text you want removed and submitted that it be removed without any explanation or justification for the request. In some instances, you have bracketed large passages of text for removal, the substance of which could not possibly reveal sensitive information or compromise an investigation. That is not an adequate and or good faith review process, and I don't believe I am obligated to comply with such sweeping and unjustified demands on the text of my work.

If you want me to continue to engage with your office in a meaningful dialogue about your concerns, it is essential that you specifically identify for me the text in the book that reveals sensitive information and in each instance explain for me why the passage is problematic. As you know, I first submitted the manuscript for your consideration in November of last year. I have been waiting for more than 3 1/2 months for your specific response. As a result of this delay my publisher and I are on a very tight publication schedule so I will need your response by COB Tuesday, March 16, 2010.

Best,
Bob

Dear Mr. Wittman,

H

4/29/2010

PREPUB-9201

Continuing the FBI prepublication review process of your manuscript "Priceless," the FBI has completed an initial assessment of your proposed changes. Your proposed changes do not nearly address the concerns previously raised to you by the FBI. The manuscript in its current form continues to expose sensitive law enforcement information and compromise ongoing investigative efforts.

To be clear, your manuscript "Priceless" is not approved for publication by the FBI.

The FBI desires to work with you to possibly further define and narrow the areas of concern in the manuscript. That said, this will require a serious effort on your part to modify significant portions of the manuscript.

Sincerely,
David M. Hardy

Dear Mr. Hardy and [REDACTED]

Thank you for sending me the FBI's recommended changes to Priceless. I have reviewed them carefully and have incorporated many of your suggestions which I have attached to this email.

If you would like me to reconsider the FBI proposed changes that I have not incorporated, please provide a brief reason for each. I will consider your recommendations, but please understand that the FBI's response is long overdue and publication of Priceless is imminent. Please provide any additional information by close of business on Thursday, March 11. Also, feel free to call, or write if you have any other questions or concerns. Thank you for your attention to this matter I sincerely appreciate it.

Best,
Bob
